EU Arctic Forum – 14 May

Master of ceremony: Raphaël Goulet, Head of the Ocean Governance, Law of the Sea, Arctic Policy Unit, European Commission

08:00-08:30 Registration and welcome coffee

08:30-09:00 Welcome and opening

Opening messages by the European Union

09:00-10:40 The EU in the Arctic: an expanded outlook

International cooperation in the Arctic is more important than ever. The increasing interest in the region by non-Arctic states is illustrated by numerous actions and dedicated policies. However, Europe has a long history of engagement in and with the Arctic. In this panel, high-level representatives from Arctic and non-Arctic EU Member States will present their views and discuss possibilities for enhancing international cooperation in the Arctic, from a European perspective.

Facilitator: Kestutis Sadauskas, Deputy-Director General for Maritime Affairs and Fisheries, European Commission

Speakers:

- Tobias Elling Rehfeld, Ambassador, Senior Arctic Official, Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Denmark
- Petteri Vuorimäki, Ambassador for Arctic Affairs, Senior Arctic Official, Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Finland
- Louise Calais, Ambassador for Arctic Affairs, Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Sweden
- Franziska Hagedorn, Head of Division for Arctic Policy, Norway, Iceland, Switzerland, Liechtenstein and UK, Foreign Office of Germany
- Carlos Lopez Ortiz, Deputy Director General for Multilateral Economic Affairs, Senior Arctic Official, Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Spain
- Rene van Hell, Arctic Ambassador for the Netherlands, Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Netherlands
- Piotr Rakowski, Senior Advisor for Arctic Policy, Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Poland

10:40-11:10 Coffee Break

11:10-12:15 Thriving Arctic ecosystems

Climate change is the most comprehensive and existential threat the Arctic faces, and it has reached an unprecedented crisis point. The dire consequences, exacerbated by environmental degradation, extend to the whole planet, and profoundly affect nature and people in multiple ways, some of which are only just becoming apparent. This panel examines ways to overcome these challenges, with a focus on climate change adaptation and mitigation as well as solutions for the sustainable use of land and marine resources.

Moderator: Vassilis Dokalis, European Commission

Speakers:

- Florika Fink-Hooijer, Director-General for Environment, European Commission
- Kirsti Mijnhijmer, Head of Secretariat, Interreg Northern Periphery and Arctic Programme
- Birgitta Larsson, Mayor of Gällivare, Sweden
- Rolf Rodven, Executive Secretary, Arctic Monitoring and Assessment Programme, Arctic Council
- Olavur Gregersen, CEO, Ocean Rainforest

12:15-13:45 Standing Lunch

13:45-15:00 The way forward for Arctic entrepreneurship and sustainability

Arctic development is driven by both local economic forces and initiatives as well as increasing global demand for products from Arctic sources. It is also fostered by local and regional political support and enabled by opening opportunities. At the same time, economic development in the Arctic is sometimes limited by lack of infrastructure and skilled workers. In this panel, Arctic entrepreneurs and local decisionmakers discuss how they navigate those challenges, and how economic development in the Arctic can be made both sustainable and inclusive, maximising the benefits of the green and digital transitions, enhancing circularity, promoting innovation and attractiveness, fostering prosperity and well-being, and taking into account the interests of those living in the Arctic.

Moderator: Clara Ganslandt, EU Special Envoy for Arctic matters, European External Action Service

Speakers:

- Moray Gilland, Head of Unit, Macro-regions, Transnational/Interregional/External Cooperation and Enlargement, European Commission (DG REGIO)
- Jillian Verbeurgt, Co-founder and Chief Technology and Product Officer, GreenBytes
- Carina Sammeli, Mayor of Lulea, Sweden
- Katarina Sætersdal, Senior Advisor, Confederation of Norwegian Enterprise
- Hanna Moen Reinsnes, Founder, Gobmi

15:00-15:30 Coffee Break

15:30-16:30 Emergency Management in the Arctic

Increasing interest in Arctic resources, infrastructure, transport, and tourism requires enhanced safety and security systems. However, as human activities in the region increase, hazards linked to climate change such as wildfires, floods or extreme weather also increase. This increases risks for people and the environment. Hence, civil protection, emergency preparedness and response or maritime search and rescue operations are becoming more relevant in the Arctic context. This panel focuses on how emergency response capacities can be strengthened and what is the EU's role in this process.

Moderator: Miguel Roncero, International Relations Officer (EU Arctic policy), European Commission

Speakers:

- Michela Matuella, Director, Emergency Response Coordination Centre, European Commission (DG ECHO)
- Ole Kristian Bjerkemo, Chair, Emergency Prevention, Preparedness and Response Working Group, Arctic Council
- Tonje Johansen, Advisor, Saami Council
- Kerry Thistle, Director, Economic Development & Strategy for the City of Yellowknife
- Christina Corbane, Team Leader, Disaster Risk Management Knowledge Centre, European Commission (Joint Research Centre)

16:30-17:30 Research in and for the Arctic

International scientific and technological cooperation is essential for the Arctic to understand and cope with the changes the region undergoes, and for the rest of the world to understand climate change and the interconnected Earth systems. This panel examines the EU's support to science, research and innovation activities in and for the Arctic, the ways to further strengthen them, and to make EU research more participatory, including active engagement with local and indigenous communities.

Moderator: Clara Ganslandt, EU Special Envoy for Arctic matters, European External Action Service

Speakers:

- Elisabetta Balzi, Head of Unit, Ocean, Seas and Waters, European Commission (DG RTD)
- Nicole Biebow, EPB Chair, AWI-EU PolarNet
- Lina Madaj, Vice-President, Association of Polar Early Career Scientists (APECS)
