Dear Mr. Borg,

Please find following a few suggestions in response to your Green Paper on the reform of the Common Fisheries Policy.

We would like to suggest that in the up coming CFP reform, there is a provision for making 40% of the beaches, coasts and seas around the EU into permanent Marine Reserves.

I would also like to ask that destructive commercial deep sea bottom trawling be permanently banned in as many areas as possible so as to allow the sea bed to regenerate in the long term. Making certain areas into designated trawl zones could also be part of this solution however.

It is obvious that self-regulation by the fishing industry and current EU policies have failed as the EU's waters are still being unsustainably plundered on a massive scale.

Mr. Borg, If you change nothing else in the CFP, please help by making 40% of the EU waters into permanent Marine Reserves.

Your sincerely,

Kate & Peter Sutton
